“AGEA provides leadership, is an advocate and voice for the export sector. It is the focal point for Australian grain and oilseed exports and works to facilitate open and contestable international market and customer access.”

What AGEA delivers for exporters

- ❖ Works for benefit of grain exporters
- ❖ Represents members that ship Australian grains and oilseeds
- ❖ Operates as the “voice of the Australian grains and oilseeds export industry”
- ❖ Represents the interests of its members to Government and industry to improve the profitability and sustainability of the grain export industry
- ❖ Acts as focal point for export customers and potential customers of Australian grains
- ❖ Supports an efficient export value chain

AGEA activities

- ◆ An advocate for members with government, industry and international markets
- ◆ Acts as an industry point of contact for international customer access, promotion and linkages
- ◆ Promotes improvements in efficiencies across the value chain
- ◆ A conduit for information flows across the value chain
- ◆ Operates in those gaps identified in the current industry representational landscape.
- ◆ Works with other industry organisations and provides export focussed input to these groups and to Government activities. This includes quality standards; biosecurity and quarantine; trade facilitation; quality assurance; information; transport/infrastructure planning and technology stewardship.
